

What's your favorite thing to watch on TV?

"How I Met Your Mother,' the characters are funny and the storyline is really interesting."

Abram Villanueva, Junior

"Jersey Shore' is really funny to watch."

Perla Gonzales, Senior

"Family Feud,' because the host is hilarious."

Naomi Aquino, Senior

Arrested Development

There's always money in the banana stand.

If you are familiar with that phrase, then you have seen this great, understated sitcom. Last summer, "Arrested Development", a brilliantly-scripted show, began screening the entirety of its seasons on Netflix Instant for the first time since its original airing between 2003-2006. It became a crowd favorite, and for good reason. We follow the bizarre and ironic dilemmas of the Bluths, who are wealthy moguls recently exposed for being corrupt. The characters stick to you and their unique, zany habits become fodder for inside jokes. This show is no "Full House" or other incredibly cheesy laugh track-ridden sitcoms. It's dry, witty and perfectly dysfunctional. It would take more time for me to write a quick description of each character than it would for you to find, in any way, shape or form, five minutes of this comedic nirvana. If the chance arises, don't hesitate! It's very good!

Similar Shows: The Office, Modern Family, Community

MICHELLE PAULINO, Opinions Editor

"ESPN, it keeps me updated on sports."

Eddie Herrera, Senior

"Grey's Anatomy'; it has a lot of drama and always keeps you on your toes."

Linda Lin, Senior

"The Office', it's amazing and hilarious."

Mark Fukuda, Junior

"Spongebob'! I love the older episodes more than the newer ones though."

Sandy Diep, Senior

Young Justice

Young Justice is a show about teenagers from the DC comics with special powers who want to prove they have what it takes to save the world from impending doom. These teens were sidekicks but events led them to make their own team. Other former partners of League members join their group later in the show.

The storyline is full of mysteries that build upon each other. The only time when the viewer has answers to their expanding list of questions is at the end of the first season. Even then, there are questions left to be answered in season two that keeps me at the edge of my seat to see what would happen next.

The characters themselves are all extremely unique and play an important role in the episodes. Every one of them has their own unique struggles on and off the team throughout the first season and as a viewer I am always concerned with their well-being.

Similar Shows: Teen Titans, Legend of Korra, Avatar: The Last Airbender

SARAH TAHKAR, Staff Writer

Big Bang Theory

Thinking back to grade school, the topic of how the universe was created through the Big Bang Theory gave me the impression that a show with the same name would be a documentary about theoretical phenomenon, but boy was I wrong.

This popular CBS sitcom focuses on two socially awkward Caltech physicists, Sheldon and Leonard, whose lives are interrupted by their polar opposite neighbor: a stereotypical blonde named Penny who turns their scientifically organized world around. While Sheldon's lack of social understanding and IQ of 187 may be comical to most, the show also uses countless sexual innuendos and geek humor that references Star Trek and comic books for a variety of audiences. Along with their good friends and colleagues, Raj and Howard, it is the chemistry among all of the characters that has kept viewers watching since 2007. As the characters go on "nerd rages" about practically everything and anything, it is the properly defined idiosyncrasies that keep viewers interested. It's a must-see!

Similar Shows: How I Met Your Mother, Friends, New Girl

TINA CHEN, Staff Writer

YOUNG JUSTICE

