

Do you think gun control policies should be reformed to prevent tragedies like those in Newtown; if so, in what ways?

"I don't think gun policies should [be reformed] because people need to protect themselves. School safety should be important."

-Unique Martinez, Junior

"Assault rifles should not be distributed in the U.S. because they could be used to kill innocent people."

-Joseph Nava, Sophomore

"[Gun] laws should be reformed. People don't need guns. Other methods [of] self defense can be used. The right to bear arms is no longer needed."

-Marine Wei, Senior

"I don't think it's necessary. [People] should be able to protect themselves. Teachers should be responsible [for their students], and schools should be safe."

-Valentine Lopez, Sophomore

"They have to make [laws] stricter so not just anyone can own a gun."

-Mayra Aguilar, Freshman

"I don't like guns; personally, I think firearms should be banned."

-Adolfo Osuna, Freshman

"Yes, laws should be reformed because every gun remains a possible danger. Less guns will help society. Not having guns would make people feel safer about their environment. Stricter policies need to be enforced."

-Yixia Chen, Senior

"Laws should be stricter because no one would want that [violence] to happen. School safety should be enforced. For example, having more staff and security would be a good place to start."

-Kayiu Wong, Freshman
